võib leida sinu pilt seoses kõige ebameeldivama looga! Kui paljud kardavad väikese lapsega sõita autos, täiesti unustades, et niisama palju ohvreid on lõmastatud kõnniteel, mida ei karda keegi...»

Ausalt õeldes hakkas Osvaldil veidi õudne. Ajaleht, auto — see kõik kõlas kuidagi kurjaendeliselt, eriti pärast seda, mida oli rääkinud sõber Juss. Feldt aga filosofeeris edasi — rahulikult, pehmelt, nagu leebus ise.

Lõpuks peatus ta laua juures, võttis veiniklaasi ja ulatas teise Osvaldile.

«All right! Olge rahulik, kõik kartused on alusetud. Me koormame teid väga harva ja varsti võib-olla enam üldse mitte. Seni aga kanname nüüdsest peale iga kuu teie arvele mõnda sliidsesse panka 50 dollarit. Teie terviseks!»

Ta tõmbus veelgi sirgemaks, tõstis klaasi täpselt silmade kõrgusele ja tühjendas selle pooleni. Umbes nii jõid vanasti keiserlikud husaariohvitserid, ainult nemad olid veel tugevamini tramnis, rüüpasid põhjani ja viskasid seejärel klaasid üle õla.

Osvald jäi kaasa. Olgu kuidas oli, kuid ta ei saanud ju käituda barbarina.

Seejärel võttis jutuaajamine uuesti asjaliku tooni.

Feldt ütles, et lugupidamisest «dear mr. Osvaldi» vastu võtab ta nüüdsest peale kontakti Tallinnaga isiklikult enda hooleks. Umbes iga

SUMMARY

This booklet is the story of Johannes Mihkelson, one of the agents of the USA Central Intelligence Agency. Taking advantage of Sweden's hospitality, he develops subversive activities against the Soviet Union on Swedish territory.

Who is Johannes Mihkelson?

He is an immigrant from Estonia and works at the "Folksam" Insurance Company's Department for Marine Insurance. He lives in Stockholm, Johanneshov, 7 Grafikvägen.

In the pre-war times Johannes Mihkelson (born in 1907) was a member of Estonia's Socialist Party. In 1932 he attended lectures at the Finnish Workers' Academy and in 1934 in Brunnsvik (Sweden) at the Swedish Trade Unions' School where he took a course in social politics. In 1935 he attended the Nordiska Folkshögskolan. In 1936 and 1937 he lived and worked as a journalist in Helsinki. He contributed to the socialist papers of Finland, Sweden and Holland.

In 1937, Johannes Mihkelson returned to Estonia and became a renegade. Renouncing his socialist beliefs, he began to praise the fascist dictatorship of Estonia's president Konstantin Päts.

In 1940, after the June Revolution had taken place in Estonia, he appeared once more as a public figure in the labour movement and welcomed the establishment of Soviet power in Estonia. At the break-out of the war against the Soviet Union he joined one of the communist workers' brigades in order to fight the fascists.

During the fascist occupation of Estonia Johannes Mihkelson was arrested. However he was set free soon thanks to the intervention of former Finnish Foreign Minister Väinö Tanner who paid a visit to the Tallinn Central Prison. But Mihkelson was discharged on one condition only: he was to become an agent of Hitler's Gestapo. Socialist Johannes Mihkelson accepted this proposal. Until 1944 he carried out various tasks on behalf of the Gestapo. He betrayed quite a number of active members of the Estonian workers' resistance movement who perished in jails and concentration camps.

After the war Johannes Mihkelson became an adventurer on an international scale. He is one of the leaders of the Socialist Union of Middle and East Europe, the leader of the Estonian Socialists in Exile and the Vice-Chairman of the pro-fascist Estonian National Council. Making use of his acquaintances among Sweden's Socialists the former Gestapo agent Johannes Mihkelson has associated himself with the international socialist movement, as well. He often makes trips to Paris, Vienna, Brussels, Copenhagen, West-Berlin, Rome and other places where international socialist conferences are held.

But, as the facts put down in this brochure show, this is only the façade of Johannes Mihkelson's activities. Actually, he is an agent of the CIA who carries out dirty subversive activities which impair the goodneighbourly relations between Sweden and the Soviet Union.

The direct chief and boss of Johannes Mihkelson is CIA officer Feldt who, though living in Zürich, quite often makes his appearance in Stockholm and Helsinki, too. This booklet tells about the united attempts of Socialist Mihkelson and CIA officer Feldt to recruit spies from among the Soviet Union's citizens who visit foreign countries. This time Mihkelson tried to make a spy of his old friend, an engineer who works in Tallinn. Under the influence of spirits, money and threats the engineer agreed to carry out the subversive activities suggested by Feldt. The "working up", the instructing and the training of the new CIA agent took place in Stockholm, Brussels and Helsinki. CIA officer Feldt was interested in such issues as the reorganisation of the structure of Soviet Estonia's national economy, reconstruction of industrial enterprises and their output capacities, workers' wages, transport problems, location of Soviet army units and submarines and their registration marks. The information put down in chemical code had to be posted to the following address: Paul Neumann, Freudenthal, Württemberg, Strombergstrasse 2, Deutsche Bundesrepublik. New orders and instructions were sent to the engineer by post, too. Letters from CIA officer Feldt to the engineer were posted in the Soviet Union. The first letter was put into a Tallinn post-box by Olavi Järvelä, leading Finnish Trade Union personality and CIA agent, the other ones by the members of the USA Moscow Embassy staff Winters and Abidian who recently were expelled from the Soviet Union as personae non gratae.

CIA agent Johannes Mihkelson was married to the daughter of bishop Sven Danell.

In an appendix to this brochure you will find the recorded text of a telephone conversation of Johannes Mikkelsen, the interview of Feldt and Mikkelsen with the freshly recruited CIA agent, and the summary of an article published on October 15th, 1967, by the Finnish newspaper "Kansan Uutiset" which exposes the activities of CIA agents Olavi Järvelä and Jaakko Rantanen.
